

Biometrics, Identity, and Security (BIdS) Research Showcase
as part of the Global Identity Summit
technically co-sponsored by IEEE Biometrics Council

Call for Presentations

The Biometrics, Identity, and Security (BIdS) Research Showcase will again be co-located with the Global Identity Summit in 2014. The Global Identity Summit is the federal government's primary outreach mechanism with the identity community, and annually attracts 2000 participants from around the world. Additionally, the National Strategy for Trusted Identities in Cyberspace (NSTIC) and Identity Ecosystems Steering Group (IDESG)'s fall plenary will be co-located at GIS this year. This partnership provides a unique opportunity for researchers (academic, government and industry) to showcase the results of their work to technology providers, systems integrators, and government officials that shape how current and future programs will function.

The program committee is hereby soliciting nominations for presentations during the BIdS Research Showcase within the Global Identity Summit. To be eligible, the nomination must have been previously published in a recent peer-reviewed conference or journal. Extra consideration will be given to research that is aligned with the federal priorities identified in the 2011 National Biometrics Challenge, the National Strategy for Trusted Identities in Cyberspace, and the Federal Identity, Credential, and Access Management \(FICAM\) Roadmap and Implementation Guidance. We are particularly interested in research topics related to privacy, security, and mobility.

Interested individuals should send an email nomination(s) to BIDSconference@gmail.com that includes:

- A one-page abstract of the research (including methods and results);
- Motivation for research and/or statement of alignment with priorities in the National Biometrics Challenge
- A copy of the peer-reviewed conference or journal paper, and citation for that
- A one-page biography of the nominated speaker.
